I have collected the latest diarries on the subject. The world likes to walk behind the somes and compare notes between the habits of ordinary life and extraordinary. The Pope gets up at half-past 6. He breakfasts at 8 on rolls and coffee or chocolate. Then he receives his prevate secretary of state and discusses affairs. His private secretary comes next, and adeasers of fruit. Dinner over the rouches any dish it is tasted by his ralet. POISONOUS MUSHROOMS. An inquest was held in Cork upon the remains of Denis Sheehaa, 8, and John Mahony, 9, both of whom died after esting a number of poisonous mushrooms. Several playmates of the deceased deposed to seeing them eat fangi which they found growing in a field, and to their becoming sick. They were removed to the infirmary to the 4th, and died shortly after their admission. Death was due to Irritant poisoning, and a verdict to that effect was returned.

There are some smart things in "The Bome Secretary." A politician says, "We Radicals are ready to give the people everything they ask for." Yes," replies another, "and nothing that they need." A third is told that "A single step in the wrong direction may land you in the peerage." Of an M.P. it is said that the Divorce Court yawns for him, and that the House of Commons yawns at him. A man is described as "a gentleman at large." "Yes," is the reply, "there are many gentlemen at large who ought not to be."

Is Miss Olga Nethersole wise to re-appear in London in a rôle in which Mrs. Patrick Campbell has made so great a success? I have no doubt whatever that her performance as Mrs. Ebbsmith will be very clever, but in these cases comparisons are inevitable. It is hinted that Miss Nethersole may figure at a matinée as the heroine of a version of "La Dame aux Camellias." That would, of course, supply an interesting test of her powers—powers which seem to have expanded very considerably during her stay in America.

this moment are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brough, the players who are very popular in Australia. Both are English. Mr. Brough is a brother of Miss Fanny Brough. I remember seeing him and his wife (then Miss Florence Trevelyan) in Gilbert-Sullivan opera a good many years ago. Mrs. Brough was then more remarkable for her personal sitractions than for her artistic capacity. It appears, however, that since she went to Australia she has developed considerable histrionic rifts, owincing great variety of talent. Will ab-

The brake question here naturally obtundes itself. Since I last mentioned it I have tried many, but none proved entirely satisfactory. The pneumatic brake disappointed me, and I do not think that anything but a hand brake will solve the difficulty, and if a band brake will solve the difficulty, and if a band brake does require extra strength in the spoking of the wheel to which it is applied, I for one am prepared to acquiesce in the increasing of the weight of my tandem by one whole pound, which, I am told, will make a difference of the most marked character in the strength of the wheel if judiciously applied.

There is a terrible lot of rubbish in the bell market just now. A friend of mine bought a bell the other day—paying a fair price—which very closely resembled one he had always carried. DRURY LANE.

If the performance of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet" was not so successful as the previous operatic efforts of students of the Guildhall School of Music the fault certainly does not lie with the young people who took part in the representation but with the authorities responsible for the selection of such an exacting work as that of the French master. The practice adopted by the three great musical institutions of London which afford pupils displaying special aptitude an opportunity of appearing in opera under legitimate stage conditions is an excellent one, worthy of all encouragement, but it should be remembered that in matters operatic as in all else the old adage applies, and that it is no use trying to run before you can waik. Having said this, it may with truth be stated that, considering circumstances and conditions, many of those who joined in the performance under the baton of Sir Joseph Barnby's revealed considerable vocal and histrionic ability (the former in the larger proportion), and gave no little promise for the future. Miss Jessie Buddleston, a young lady with some stage experience, is still lacking in grace of movement, but she sang fairly well, especially the walts song, and had for lover Mr. Lloyd Chandos, who was vocally more convincing. The Friar Lawrence was Mr. Griffiths-Perey, who concealed awkwardness of manner under the charms of a really fine bass voice. In some cases the acting was corelistic as evidently to cause no little anxiety in the mind of Sir A. Harris (who witnessed the performance from a private box), during the more recklass moments of the combate. mind of Sir A. Harris (who mind of Sir A. Not even the passionate avowal by this idealistic regenerator of peoples that his love for mankind in general has focussed itself upon his hostess in particular draws from her more than a tender and sympathetic dismissal. Her would-be seducer Mrs. Trendel still regards as a hero, until she detects him playing burglar with her husband's despatch box for the purpose of stealing a certain letter, as yet unread by the Home Secretary, identifying the purloiner as the notorious Anarchist Dangerfield, the importance of whose capture, with a view to thwarting his diabolical dynamite plots, is the secret cause of the Home Secretary's harassing anxieties. Even then, when the wife and her lover at their midnight meeting are surprised by the entitled of the husband, the infatuated lady declines to explain the terriby equivocal dynamics of the husband, the infatuated lady declines to explain the terriby equivocal position in which she is found, because the resistion would involve the death of Dangerfield, who, to save the lady's fame after having tried to sully her bonour, reveals not only who he is but also his felonious purpose in coming there. It is then the Cabinet Minister's turn to take up the thread of incongruity, for, instead of at once calling in the police and giving the thief and dynamiter in ordical contemutuously

SOUTH LONDON PALACE.

The hypnotic demonstration forthcoming at the South London Palace on Monday evening cannot be regarded as a very eatisfactory performance, or one out of which it is pessible to derive much pleasure, and because its projectors, in their haste to take advantage of the hypnotic craze, have been unmindful of the fact that music hall audiences are lovers of fairplay. The wish to throw cold water upon the achievements of Mr. Morritt was only too apparent, and the means taken to obtain this object were not exactly in good taste. A cougle of hypnotiesed subjects (male and female), reclining in coffins, were carried into the hall and placed on the stage, and their insensibility to pain, &c., was vouched for by a practitioner from a well-known coasting resort. With the "awakening" of these subjects came the most enjoyable part of the proceedings, for the gentleman, on vacating his funebrial shell, did all that the most exacting trancemerchant could expect of him. And when he and his fellow subject had taken their departure the exposition was proceeded with, one of the young men of the party permitting Professor Gale to probe his fash with needles without being placed under the hypnotic influence. Had Professor Gale endeavoured to amuse his audience instead of enlightening them, and dispensed with those unsightly coffins, the proceedings might have been rendered much more entertaining than they proved to be. In other respects Mrs. J. J. Poole's programme is well varied and attractive.

Poole's programme is well varied and attractive.

OUEENS'.

This old-established resort has an excellent programme just at present, and one which attracts and gratifies its patrona. To Professor Selkirk belongs the credit of bringing to the East-end his entertaining spectacular sketch, "Bonnie Scotland," in which a hundred children of the Poplar district are employed. This is a most enjoyable item, with plenty of music, song, and dance to enliven the proceedings, the principal parts being well sustained by the originator of the scheme and his talented son and daughter. In "The Life of a Soldier "Mr. Arthur Lennard has secured another ballad which is likely to become popular, the song being well written and sung to a taking melody. This artist's other songs, "Pardners" and "The girl with the golden hair," are also well applauded. Miss Lily Marney is to the fore with Irish character songs, delivered in this artist's best style, notably, "Arrah, go on!" which would seem to be a special favourite of the Poplar folk, possibly on account of its captivating chorus. Clever singers and deacers are the Sisters Oliver, a trio of young ladies who not only excel in the arts we have mentioned, but also evince great taste in the matter of costume. Other contributors to the entertainment, which is characterised throughout by good taste as well as brightness and go, are Mr. Mark. Sheridan, Master Walter Amey, Miss Rosie May, and the everpopular musical and white-eyed Kaffir, Mr. G. H. Chirgwin.

Walter Amey, Miss Roste May, and the everpopular musical and white-eyed Kaffir, Mr.
G. H. Chirgwin.

The entertainment given at Mr. Henri Gros' fine hall last week was indeed of a varied nature, as will be seen when it is stated that the principal contributors thereto were the ubiquitous Mr. Albert Chavalier and the redoubtable "Goffee Cooler." The engagement of the last-named was for six or seven nights only, and our variety stage will not know him again, it is said, until his return from America. Despite their charming melodies, Mr. Chevalier is none too well provided in the matter of songs just now,
his best essay greatly depending for success
on that excellent pantomimic dance, a device that is crowned with applause. This occurs in a song in praise of a certain "Fairy Flo,"
which promises to become popular. "Z aint got the shadow of a notion "is to be likened to one of Mr. Chevalier's previous successes, and is, of course, well written. In another direction a decided hit was made by Mr. Leo Dryden in an heroic number "India's Reply," which, rendered with the requisite military ardour, is made vastly entertalping.
Miss Katie Lawrence's agreeable presence and unostentatious method gained for her tuneful songs a cordial reception; the wonderful bicycling, &c., of the Selbini of Troupe was as popular as heretofore, and the Haytors co-operated in a diverting bagaretile," 'His Nibs and his Nobs," a highly a musing and well-presented variety act.
Other popular favorities contributing to the top three times in succession without touching the ground in the transit from one trapeze to another.—Mr. W. Greet's "Little Christopher Columbus" company has drawn large audiences to the Grand during the past week. Mr. W. Lonnen bears the burden of the piece as O'Hooligan, and a better exponent it would be difficult to find. He is supported by Mr. E. T. Steyne and Mr. Kingston Trollope. The title rôle is essayed is highly creditable.

MRS. THOMPSON LEAVES AGAIN.

Mrs. Thompson again put in an appearance at the Law Courts on Monday—this time before the Lord Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Charles. She said she left two sindarius with Mr. Justice Cave and Mr. Justice Lawrance, but had only got a judgment on one. One of the affidavits was in respect of a solicitor; the other was about her children.—Sternly asked by the Lord Chief Justice what her application to the court was, Mrs. Thompson said. I wish this boy removed from the court was, if I wish this boy removed from the open air. I can't get access to my children.—"We cannot hear any more of this application," said the Lord Chief Justice; "your case has been tried. This court has no power to interfere with the decision of the custody of the children."—Mrs. Thompson continued to address the court, and Lord Ressell at last told her to sit down, or she would be prohibited from coming into the court.—

She left in an excited state.

Complainant then said that upon various pretent—to see the ruy in business, to go to New York, &c—he from time to time gave defendant two more sums of £100 each, £150, and last of all £200. The defendant, however, came to his house and created a disturbance and caused a scandal. He put the matter into the hands of his solicitor, but she waylaid him, and persuaded him to give her another chance. This he did. About March last he heard of her again. She had since written him numerous letters, among them being one dated April 19.—Mr. Wontner handed his worship the letter in question, which, he said, was the one he relied upon. The letter was handed to the defendant, who, after reading it, exclaimed, "That is quite true, sir."—Ine complainant added that he had received other letters, some of them also of a threatening nature.—Mr. Hopkins pointed out to the defendant that he had no jurisdictich over a case of this kind, which must go for trial, and suggested that she should place herself in the hands of a solicitor.—The defendant, after some demur, said she would like an adjournment, and added, pointing to

MARGARINE PROSECUTION FAILS.
At North London, the inspectors of the Butter Association, whose offices are at Monument-buildings, summoned Mr. S. T. Evans, provision dealer, Kingaland-road, for exposing for sale margarine which was not labelled.—Defendant denied that the article was exposed for sale. It was on the pattingualsh, and could not be seen from the outside of the shop, as alleged by the inspectora. In reply to this the inspectors (Toler and Moore) swore that the margarine was partially enclosed by glass, up the back and sides of theslash, and it could be seen through the glass.—The defendant answered that it was not glass, but polished black marble.—With this direct contradiction, Mr. Lane adjourned the case, and said he would go and look himself. This he had done and he now said he would give judgment in favour of the defendant. The inspectors had sworm that they could see the margarine on the slab by looking from the pavement through the above window. This might be nossible for a hone window.

DEPARTURE OF THE QUEENS OF HOLLAND.

Queen Wilhelmins of Holland and Queen Emms, her mother, on Thursday concluded their visit to London and left Victoria by special train en route to Queenborough, where they embarked on their own yacht for the Hague. Their majesties travelled to England and about the metropolis incognito, but for the occasion of their departure all semblances of privacy was dropped. Queen Victoria, who has shown great interest in the young monarch, and has entertained both her mother and herself at Buckingham Palace, had directed that one of the royal carriages from the Palace should convey the distinguished visitors to the station, and accordingly an equipage with postillions and outriders in royal livery was sent to Brown's Hotel. THE DISINTERESTED PARTY

THE DISINTERESTED PARTY.

"I am perfectly certain," said Sir William Harcourt at the political reception by the National Liberal Club, last Wednesday evening, "that I am speaking the sentiments of wery member of the Government, however imperfectly I may express them, when I say that the charge that we are clining to office is an unjust charge." Office, Sir William elsewhere said, would be "intolerable" were to not endured "for the purpose of promoting measures." We should like to know what the measures are for the promotion of which this band of disinterested statesmen consents to go on groaning under the intolerable burden of office! That the present Government he measures are for the promotion of which his band of disinterested statemen consents to go on groaning under the intolerable buren of office! That the present Government ass introdecod measures innumerable we are quite aware. There are no fewer than our first-class Ministerial Bills ploughing heir way through the House of Commons at he present time. But we assert boldly in he face of Sir William Harcourt's nauseating cant about duty to the country that Ministers know perfectly well that those measures rill never pass, and that it is absolutely least to describe the recent Government.

RADICAL ROUGHS.

With any luck Mr. Bailey ought to win Walworth for the Unionist cause. For, setting aside the Socialist candidate, our opponents are not strongly represented in the present fight for this typical democratic constituency. Col. Reade is a gentleman who has changed his mind a good many times, though he has not yet found the Parliamentary seat he has so long sought with more diligence than political consistency. But, however good Mr. Bailey's prospects may be, it is imperative that he should have fair play. Fair play, however, is just what the Radicals don't mean to let him have—if they can help it. Last Wednesday evening Mr. Bailey's meeting was invaded by a gang of Radical roughs, who transformed it into a scene of continuous uproar. The Unionist candidate was, in fact, completely prevented from expressing his political opinions to the electors who wanted to hear them, owing to the rowdy blackguardism of the assembled Radical roughs. We may mention that the meeting held in the Radical interest by Col. Reade was absolutely undisturbed by any corresponding misbehaviour on the part of any Unionists. In view, therefore, of the line which our opponents in Walworth are following we do not hesitate to advise the local Unionists to take the pecessary measures to presume upon last Wednesday's repeat these cowardly tactics we required our own side to show them, as gentles, but with unmistakably persuas

FALL FROM AN OMNIBUS.

On Saturday, a gentieman was about to quit the top of an omnibus near the Bank when the vehicle being in motion, he lost his balance and fell headforemost over the rail into the street. In his descent he came into collision with two other gentiemen, both of whom were knocked down. This, however, served to break what must otherwise have proved a very serious fall, and, strange to say, not one of the parties was injured beyond receiving a severe shaking. No blame is attached to the driver or conductor of the bus.

CONFESSION FROM THE DOCK.

James Shutt, 22, porter, was convicted at the Cierbeavell Semions of breaking into the shop of Mr. W. J. Mitchell, jewaller, at Ell-burn-park-road, and stealing a case containing 24 rings, Ave watches, and other property, value £100. The robbery was a very daring noe, the pinter-liese shop window having been broken and the jewallery abstracted.—Prosecutor stated that £30 worth of the property valued that £30 worth of the property and the property is noner, then apole to the man in the dock, and immediately afterwards observed. The soner has made a statement to me which I should prefer him to make in open court.—Prisoner was then asked if he had anything to say. In a mild tone he replied: "The property lies in Church-treet, at Mr., manufoling a certain person's name.—Sir P. Edilli, addressing the officer in the case: "Proceed thither immediately without a moment's delay. Sentence will be postponed on prisoner."

MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE.
At Bow-street, an application was made to Mr. Vaughan respecting the disappearance of Mr. C. Beviss, a young solicitor, of Durban, Natal. He had come to England on a holiday, Intauding to return at the end of May, and had taken rooms at 23, Keppel-street, Russell-square. On Monday, April 22, he went down to East Greenwich, and engaged a boat, taking a boy with him se ter as Woolwich, where he left him, saying that he meant to go on to Purfieet. Nothing had been seen of him since that time, but on the following day the boat was tound at Purfieet, half full of water, and with the care, de., lying on the bank. No reason was known which would lead to the supposition that he had committed suicide. He is described as 28 years of age, thin build, fair complexion,
har, whishers, and moustache light brown, eyes grey. When last seen he was dressed in light overcoat, blue sarges suit, light brow feit hat, spats, and isoo boots. He leaves a wife and two children at Durban. MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE.

A verdict of manslaughter was on Thursday returned at Derby against the lunatic Kinsey, who murdered Samuel Green, also an inmate of the Borough Asylum. Kensey will be dealt with by the Home Secretary.

PLYMOUTH LADY'S LIBEL ACTION

Mr. J. L. Toole does not intend retiring from the stage, as has been stated.
The Queen left Buckingham Palace on Thursday evening, and drove to Paddington Station, whence she proceeded by special train to Windsor. Great crowds thronged the park and gataered near the station, and her Majesty was cheered with great enthusiasm.
